Cured After 24 Years of Misery.

MRS LITTLE, residing at the corner of San Pablo avenue and Forty-first street, Oakland, says: "After being under a physician's care for years and taking opiates every night to quiet my nerves and produce sleep, I commenced a few months ago to take half a wine-glass of Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron each night before retiring. The effect was wonderful and now I have discarded physicians and opiates and am able to sleep soundly every night. In fact I have received new life and vigor, and cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron."

☞ This is only one case of several hundred who have been cured and saved from years of misery. This remedy is for sale by all druggists. BE-WARE OF VILE IMITATIONS. Dr. Henley's is the original and only preparation of Celery, Beef and Iron in the market. Ask for

The Stutzman Improved Fruit Evaporators

Are for Sale and on Exhibition at the Storerooms of the

C. W. GIBSON COMPANY,

108, 110 and 112 North Main Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

And orchardists and farmers especially are invited to examine the machines and get Catalogues and prices.

The Stutzman Evaporator is made of galvanized iron and hence is fire-proof. The Trays are wire gauze. There is nothing shoddy in its construction. It is more easily moved about than any other Evaporator in the market. This alone is of great advantage to the fruit dryer. In simplicity of construction and durability it excels, and in cheapness nothing of the kind can compete with it. Made in all sizes, from stove to large factory sizes. jun26

AMERICAN FRUIT EVAPORATOR!

The most practical and reliable Fruit Evaporator made. It gives unobstructed hot air currents ABOVE and BELOW all fruit, thus insuring evenness of drying and no spoiled fruit. Beware of infringements. THE AMERICAN is pre-eminently the fruit-raisers' machine. Its sizes grade from domestic to manufacturing wants. It makes the highest quality of work with ordinary care in handling. There is no need of making anything else. Though we approve a slight use of sulphur, the AMERICAN is specially adapted for highest grade in unbleached work. It places fresh cut fruit first in highest and driest heat; cures cut surfaces at once and keeps them dry, thereby setting and making permanent the color, and also thereby, as in broiling steaks, securing the highest quality in product. We place our experience in evaporating at the disposal of our customers. In some cases its gratuitous service is of more value than prices paid us for evaporators. Sold by

S. Fiske, D.D., President Albion College; Albion, Mich.; formerly pastor of Central M. E. Church, Detroit, Mich., and editor of the Christian Advocate:

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23, 1877.

DR. WILLIAMS—Dear Sir: I am glad to add my testimony to the efficacy of the treatment my son has received. In the Spring of 1877, my son, then at the age of 22, was suffering from a severe attack of the bronchial tubes and lungs, so as to be compelled to keep his room, and the most of the time his bed. Within the space of two weeks he experienced about a dozen hemorrhages, from which the physician in attendance feared he could not rally. I applied to you who sent me relief. Within using medicines, which effected an immediate arrest of the bleeding, and which has never occurred since he began the inhalation. Respectfully, L. S. FISKE.

THE St. Louis Republican refers to the Post-Dispatch as "our spavined contemporary, whose halt is its best gait." That's not slow.

WE ought to use every precaution to prevent a visitation of the cholera, because funerals are so expensive. The most extravagant thing a poor man can do nowadays is to die.

"GRANT is not writing a history of the war, but what he knows about it. If all the war historians were equally modest, we should have a great deal less pyrotechnic literature." Well said by the Examiner.

THE Kansas City Journal is assured by good authority that "the President did not fish on Sunday." He only laid along the banks of the creek, spied out the best-looking places, dug bait, and on Monday morning bagged a big catch.

TURKEY don't want any Christian Ministers in here. Rev. Mr. Moffitt, an Episcopalian rector who was lately appointed consul to Beirut, Turkey, had to be assigned to Athens instead, because the Turkish Government objected to a dominie.

"THE Sun" (evening) is a new candidate for public support in Stockton, and "The Scooper" has come out in San José with the announced determination of shoveling up things clean in the Garden City. It is a unique, humorous and cheerful one.

IN conformity with a late regulation of the Signal Service Department, the prognostications will be issued, after August 1st, for thirty-two hours in advance. It will be a comfort to us here in Southern California to know that we are to have, off and on, thirty-two hours of uninterrupted weather.

THE Southern Pacific Railroad Company's statement of May business shows receipts $1,682,635. Operating expenses, $814,958. Net earnings, $867,682. Thus it appears that more than half of the company's gross receipts are net earnings. Eastern roads, with strong competition, do not make such showings as that.

THE exports of wheat from the United States for twelve months ending June 30, 1884, were 68,107,030 bushels. The exports for twelve months ending June 30, 1885, were 82,449,014 bushels, showing that in 1885 we exported 14,-341,984 bushels more than the previous year. We likewise exported nearly seven million bushels more of corn than during 1884.

IN to-day's dispatches there seems to be a dark hint of a movement to bull the price of gold. Ex-Secretary Sherman talks of a possible fifteen per cent. premium on the yellow metal, and New York bankers have been agitating the subject of making a gold loan of three or four millions to the Government. What this all means will probably be developed in a few days. There may be a Black Friday in prospect.

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean has the following: "In the LOS ANGELES TIMES we notice a mortage of $600,000 upon the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railroad. This will place the road in funds, and the beautiful valley will soon have quick transportation. Much of the expensive work has been done. It will open up for residence one of the most beautiful valleys in the world."

IT is announced in a Washington dispatch that the Secretary of the Interior has determined to turn over to the War Department the complete control of the Cheyenne-Arrapahoe reservation. This is a step that General Sheridan has long advised. If it works well in the present instance the Indians may all be commended to the tender mercies of the army. If the Indian agents were generally eliminated it would probably be a good thing.

A FEW days ago we had information by telegraph of the formation of the Gould-Huntington pool of transcontinental railways. As an offset and counter-irritant, to-day comes intelligence of another pool known as the Colorado and California Railway Association. This last includes the Union Pacific, the DENVER and Rio Grande and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe companies. It is Lovisthan against Leviathan. May they long live to fight each other and thus give the little fishes a chance.

THE Record-Union has been boasting that gambling in Sacramento has been suppressed. Now comes the Bee and contradicts the assertion, and says that only the banking games have been suppressed, and that poker games can be foun f everywhere, and each game patronized by dozens of young men and boys. The Capital City ought to be able to suppress this vice. It has made some advances, however, since the time, and that not far in the past, when its journals were openly defending the licensing of the crime.

AT 12 o'clock last night, General Grant's physicians said that he was dying. They did not intimate that dissolution was necessarily immediate, but they feared that it could hardly be postponed later than 4 o'clock this morning. No telegram announcing the General's death had reached us up to the hour of 3 o'clock this morning, and as this was equivalent to about 6 o'clock in New York, it is evident that the patient had passed the supposably fatal time. Considering all of the symptoms as telegraphed from Mount McGregor, it is manifest that the sad result which the country has been awaiting with bated breath, must come all too soon.

Saratoga Races.

SARATOGA, July 22.—This was the first extra day of the race meeting here. The first race, one mile, was won by Powhatan, Girafa second, Conkling third. Time 1:45. In the third race, sweepstakes, one mile and fifty yards, Farwell finished first, April Fool second. Time, 2:18¼. The fourth race was won by Whit Gig, with Col. Clark second, Charley Marks third. Time, 1:16.

DYING.

General Grant Surely Approaching the End.

LIMIT OF LIFE FIXED AT A FEW HOURS

Symptoms of Dissolution Manifested at Midnight—The Hours of One and Four This Morning Anticipated with Fear.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 22, 9 a. m.—The actual condition of the patient is pronounced unchanged since last night, except that General Grant is said by Dr. Douglas to be growing weaker. Some food has been taken and retained this morning. The patient is sitting with a slightly inclined head, conscious and clear of mind. Dr. Douglas has sent for Dr. Sands. Dr. Douglas anticipates the end during the day or evening.

AT 1 P. M.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 22.—Dr. Douglas has just left the cottage. He says the General sits with his head inclined forward and eyes closed the greater part of the time. His pulse is very weak and fluttering. The patient, once during the morning, attempted to write, but succeeded only in writing the date, the effort being greater than was warranted by his little remaining strength. He had spoken at intervals but his voice was very feeble. During the forenoon food was taken and retained. With the declining day the physician believes that the General will also rapidly decline.

A SLIGHT RALLY.

MT. MCGREGOR, N. Y., July 22—2 P. M.—Dr. Douglas has just reported that his patient has taken and retained a cup of milk, and the physician thinks if there has not been a slight rally in the past hour the General is at least holding his own. At 2:15 o'clock members of the family and Dr. Newman were grouped in the darkened room near General Grant, observing the evidence of failure. The General said: "I do not want anybody to be distressed on my account."

A MEDICAL CONFERENCE IN PROSPECT.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 22, 3:30 p. m.—Dr. Sands and Dr. Shrady have just arrived by special train, which also brought U. S. Grant, Jr., and his wife. The new comers repaired at once to the cottage, and it is likely that a conference of the medical men will soon be held. No special change has occurred since the last dispatch.

A singular occurrence has just been related by Dr. Newman as having occurred in the cottage. At five minutes of one o'clock, General Grant asked the hour of day. "One o'clock," said one of those near the General. Soon afterward the cottage clock chimed twelve strokes, and the General counted them and wrote on a pad that he observed the clock was wrong, and indicated a desire to have it struck to the right hour, which was done.

There has been a recurrence of the hiccough to-day.

THE CONFERENCE.

Mr. McGregor, July 21, 4 p. m.—The physicians met at once after Dr. Douglas in consultation, having left the cottage. It was stated that Doctors Shrady and Sands had found General Grant in a critical condition, as already stated by Dr. Douglas and already announced in these dispatches. None of the staff are willing to make any prediction beyond twenty-four hours, which period it is deemed quite possible that the General may survive, though the probabilities as now indicated are that the end will come at or near the limit of the General's life. The change for the worse is anticipated as the day closes. The pulse is now over 100.

PULSE 130.

Mr. McGregor, July 22d, 5 p. m.—The General's pulse is said, unofficially, to equal 130 within the hour past. There has been no marked change since 4 o'clock.

SINKING.

Mr. McGregor, July 22d, 6:30 p. m.—He is sinking.

NIGHTFALL.

Mr. McGregor, July 22d, 7 p. m.—As the sun went down a cool breeze like that of last night sprang up, and again the laymen on the mountain endeavored to persuade themselves and others that the cool night would bring renewed strength to the patient and help him rally through the night. But such was not the opinion of the doctors, who were prepared to attend the General's death-bed at a moment's notice, or wait through hours and into the night for the end. More than that, they were not prepared to find the patient alive in the morning. At 7 o'clock, the three physicians were at dinner. Harrison came to the hotel and called Dr. Douglas, who went at once and alone to the cottage. Soon after was another messenger from the cottage summoned Drs. Shrady and Sands, and they repaired to the cottage, closely followed by Drs. Newman. The exits of the doctors and clergyman from the hotel were, however, so quietly made that few knew they had been summoned to the cottage. Arriving there, they found the General evidently sinking. The General seemed restless. "Would you like to lie down, father?" asked Col. Fred Grant, who noticed the restlessness. The General at the same moment essayed to rise unassisted, but the effort was too great, and he sank back into his chair. The Colonel and nurse aided him to arise and then supported him to the bed, where he was carefully lowered to a reclining position and partly on his face. Dr. Douglas then rolled the chairs back, and one of the physicians remarked, aside, that "The General has now left his chair for the last time." The belief is that General Grant has at length lain down to die. The family are all gathered at the side of the sick man, and again Dr. Newman, at about the same hour as last night, and at Mrs. Grant's request, knelt beside the General and prayed. Heads were bowed, and tears were on the cheeks of men as well as women. The doctors sat somewhat apart and the family were near.

It is just nine months ago to-day that Gen Grant walked into Dr. Douglas's office to seek his professional aid for the cancer that has done what foes and war could not.

LATER.—The doctors and clergyman strode out upon the piazza and sat near the parlor window, and Jesse Grant joined them at times. But other members of the family remained in the sick room and watched.

THE PULSE BEATS.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, July 22.—The development of the General's weakness during the afternoon was not particularly noticeable from hour to hour, but between 3 and 6 p. m. there was a clearly, though not violently, marked increase of weakness. At 3 o'clock it was possible to measure the pulse beats, but at 6 o'clock one of the physicians stated that the pulse beats could not be counted, because they were so frequent and feeble. During the afternoon the blood tide had so quickened that it more rapidly wore the system and exhausted the frail body. If any existed, upon which might be placed a hope that the General might rally. The point was reached at six o'clock, when there was little to be expected from attempts to administer stimulants. Soon after six o'clock Harrison came up from the cottage and told Dr. Sands and Shrady that Dr. Douglas desired to see them at the cottage. Thither went the doctors, remaining but a short time and then coming again to the hotel. It is believed that the condition of the patient was found to have been as stated above, and that while the temperature was nearly, if not quite normal, the respirations were nearly 30 per minute. The family is beginning at 6 o'clock to come to the hotel to dinner in twos, the others remaining at the cottage in the meantime. The family dined in a private room set apart for their use at the hotel, in order that, at this critical time, they might be secluded from the curious observation of the many visitors and guests, with whom the General's condition from hour to hour has been the topic of the day. The closed and silent cottage has all day suggested mutely the sentiment of the last scene in General Grant's earthly existence, and upon the guests and visitors has settled a sense of the nearness of death. There seems a hush upon the mountain, and among all those upon it.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 22.—The time passed slowly indeed, and at length at 8:15 o'clock Dr. Douglas left the cottage.

"How is the General?" was asked him.

"He is dying," said the gray-haired physician

"Will he live an hour?" was asked again.

"Oh, yes, and possibly more, but he is passing away," was the response. After a little time at the hotel Dr. Douglas returned to the cottage.

ASLEEP.

At 9 o'clock the General's pulse was up to 165 beats a minute and was fluttering after his rally, and about 9 o'clock the General sank into a sleep that was described by witnesses as peaceful and beautiful as the sleep of a child.

INDICATIONS OF DISSOLUTION.

During the evening the extremities of the sick man have been cold, and in the visible symptoms are the signs that nature puts on view when death is chilling the powers. The General, as the night passes, seems suffering no pain, though the lines of his face are intensely drawn and the furrows of the brow are knitted as he lies upon the cot, beside which the family are constantly waiting.

THE CRISIS REPORTED.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 22.—At 11 o'clock the General was not asleep. The hands and forearms were colder than two hours before, but the feet not so much so. The pulse and respiration had not changed. The patient's mind was clear and comprehensive of events and utterances about him. Between 10 and 11 Dr. Shrady accosted the General and he answered in a husky voice but promptly. Stimulants were being used but sparingly and there was an opinion by a medical authority about 11 o'clock that the closing crisis might occur either at one or four o'clock to-night.

AT MIDNIGHT.

At midnight the General remains quiet, though not asleep. The coming hour is being anticipated with great anxiety. Bottles of hot water are being placed at the General's feet to induce warmth, and mustard draughts applied to the stomach and breast to preserve the flagging circulation. Dr. Sands is resting at the hotel and Dr. Douglas and Shrady are at the cottage.

AT ONE O'CLOCK.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, July 23, 1 a. m.—The General remains in the same quiet condition, pulse and respiration unchanged, and there is a feeling that he may ride over the midnight season of weakness and until 4 a. m. Hypodermics of brandy are being used.

AT TWO O'CLOCK.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23, 2 a. m.—The family is astir at the cottage though there are no visible indications that point to other conditions than at the time of the last bulletin.

AT 2 O'CLOCK.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23, 2 a. m.—Grant is in a somnolent condition. Respirations have been growing shallow and the General is no longer able to expectorate because of the weakness which is increasing. There seems but little possibility that the patient will survive the night.

AT 4 O'CLOCK.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23—4 a. m.—Respirations are 50. The pulse is so rapid as not to be counted, and hypodermics which have been quite frequently administered through the night, have no longer any marked effect. The family are still astir.

5:35 A. M.—THE DEATH RATTLE.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23.—The respirations have increased to 60, and the death rattle, occasioned by the filling of the lungs and throat with mucus, is heard. He now recognizes his friends by opening his eyes.

HOPE.

What a San Francisco Dealer Says About the Pacific Coast Market.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—A prominent dealer in hops, being interviewed on the outlook of the hop market for 1885, said "The market is now almost stagnant, and prospects are poor for good prices. An explanation of the situation lies in the fact that the supply is much greater than the demand in almost every hop producing country in the world. On the Pacific Coast the production for 1884 was, California, 45,000 bales; Oregon, 11,000 bales; Washington Territory, 34,000 bales; making a total of 77,000 bales. Of this crop only about 4,000 bales are used for home consumption. The remainder of the crop is used to supply Eastern and English markets. Of last year's crop of the Pacific Coast, about 16,000 bales remain as surplus to be carried over for 1885. In Germany a large surplus was left over. The same was the case in New York. As California exports the major portion of her hops, the market is governed by the crops of the old world. With immense quantities of the article remaining over from last year and a probably proportionally large yield in the great hop growing countries, the outlook for good prices is not hopeful. Latest advices indicate that the yield this year for Washington Territory will be larger than that of last year, climatic conditions having been favorable there. Oregon will probably yield a good full crop. California has not been so fortunate, and will not have more than five-eighths of a yield in comparison with the last year. This is owing to the long dry spell and partly to the large destruction of the crop in some localities by grasshoppers and bugs. Our latest advices from Germany show that the production there will be as great as last year's yield; that the market there is stagnant; that English buyers are not purchasing or making any contracts, but are awaiting the result of the American market, and seem to be anxious to take advantage of the glutted condition of the world's market."

Greene and Wife Released at Last.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Samuel W. Greene and wife, the couple who were taken in custody at Wilmington, June 5th, by Detective John Coffey, were released to-day from the City Receiving Hospital, where they had been since their arrival here, owing to Greene's having attempted suicide by cutting his throat while en route to this city, at the time of his arrest. Greene was formerly bookkeeper for an American watch firm at Melbourne, and while acting in that capacity is said to have obtained a considerable sum of money by forgery. He was arrested upon a telegraphic warrant from the Australian authorities. They were notified of the arrest, but as they have yet taken no steps toward extradition, Judge Wilson held, when the matter was brought to his attention by habeas corpus, that Greene could not lawfully be longer detained, and so ordered his discharge from custody. It is understood, from the inaction of the Australian authorities, that no prosecution of the case is intended.

PERISHED ON THE DESERT.

Horrible Fate of a German Reported Crazy.

WINNEMUCCA, Nev., July 22.—A sheepherder from I. X. L. reported at Lovelock that there was a man on the Stillwater desert crazy. Officers started and found the body of a man who had perished from thirst on the desert. The ground near the body was torn up, showing that the deceased had suffered much. His coat and vest were found six miles from the body. Papers in his clothing showed that his name was Walter Gabriel, a native of Germany, aged 35 years.

Last night the body of a man who had been dead four or five days was found on the road between the Humboldt House and Deep Hole Springs. The cause of death is unknown. The Coroner has just left to hold an inquest.

A NEW RAILROAD POOL.

The Colorado and California Association Formed.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Representatives of lines belonging to the Colorado Railway Association held a meeting to-day and took the first step in the formation of a new pool. It was agreed to form an association pooling all business between Colorado and California, and covering all revenues between Ogden, Deming and Albuquerque in the west and Colorado in the east, the same to be called the Colorado and California Railway Association. The lines interested in the new pool will include the Union Pacific, Denver and Rio Grande and Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe. It is expected that to-morrow the organization will be perfected and its duration determined.

Order to Pay the Coupons.

DENVER, July 22.—Upon petition of George Coppell, Chairman of the New York Commission of Consolidated Mortgage Bondholders of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, Judge Hallett, of the United States Circuit Court, to-day ordered that payments upon the principal of the car trusts should be suspended until October next, when a final hearing will be had; also directed the receiver to pay the coupons of the first and the mortgage bonds maturing last November. Receiver Jackson will arrange for the payment in New York next week.

Judge Foraker Declines.

CINCINNATI, July 22.—Judge Foraker has declined a joint discussion with Thompson, the Prohibition candidate for Governor. The grounds are that the prohibition question is not an issue in the campaign, and that Thompson is merely an ally of the Democrats.

GOLD.

A Hint that it May Jump to a Premium.

INTERVIEW WITH HON. JOHN SHERMAN

He Thinks an Advance to 15 Per Cent is Possible—A Gold Loan to the United States Treasury.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Senator John Sherman, in an interview on the financial condition of the country, was asked if he thought there was danger of gold obtaining a premium and the business of the country dropping to an exclusively silver basis, as had been represented. "That depends entirely upon the way in which the finances are managed," was the reply. "I have grave doubts whether Congress will consent immediately to a suspension of silver coinage. It is possible, however, that Congress may agree upon some measure that will render the repeal of the coinage act unnecessary. If the silver dollar could be made of the value of the gold dollar, there would be no necessity for repealing the present law. I am in favor of increasing the weight of the silver dollar from 412½ grains to 448 grains. It would thus circulate on a parity, so far as actual value is concerned, with gold and silver certificates, and would be of the same value as gold certificates. If gold once attains a premium of 1 per cent., it will surely reach the premium that represents the exact difference in value between the silver and gold dollar, or about 15 per cent."

MUST ABOLISH SILVER COINAGE.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Herald publishes interviews with several business men on the coinage of silver dollars. The Herald says: The result shows that Congress should promptly pass a law repealing the law for silver coinage, as the continuance of the law causes alarm in financial and business circles. But one opinion was expressed, and everybody served with such unanimity that it was remarkable; that the people must speak in such times that Congress must grant the popular demand.

ABOUT ADVANCING GOLD.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Clearing House Committee met yesterday, but took no formal action on the subject of advancing gold to the government in case of need. It is generally thought that there will be no necessity for action, and possibly it would be illegal, if desirable.

A GOLD LOAN POSSIBLE.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Post's Washington special says: "The Treasury officials think that the difficulties in the way of a gold loan from New York banks will be overcome and a loan of $5,000,000 or $4,000,000 will be made probably at an early day.

Personal Journalism.

During and since the trial of Spreckles for shooting De Young, of the San Francisco Chronicle, the subject of personal journalism was and has been made the theme for a vast amount of discussion on the forum and in the press. On that noted trial the attorneys for the defense spoke for days upon almost every subject under the sun, except the one before the court, namely, the question of the guilt or innocence of De Young's assailant. "Personal journalism" formed the topic of a large share of the eloquent pleading done by Spreckles's lawyers; and reading their interminable speeches, one unacquainted with the merits of the case would suppose that De Young was on trial for the offense of "personal journalism," instead of Spreckles being on trial for the crime of attempted murder.

Among the columns of comment with which the press has teemed on this subject of "personal journalism," we have read none more pertinent than the following, from the Sacramento Bee, entitled "Two Sides to Personal Journalism:"

Do the people who make such a clamor against personal journalism realize how comprehensive that term is? Personal journalism is not confined to assaults on personal character. Every part of personal mention in the press is personal journalism. Who does not like to be praised in print? Every man enjoys a eulogistic notice of himself by a newspaper. There is never any complaint of the "invasion of private life" by the press when the "invasion" results in any of the numerous forms of puffing. All biographical sketches of "prominent citizens," all mention of their goings and comings, their entertainments or possessions, belong to the sphere of personal journalism. Gossip of this sort makes a large element of the matter, and not the least interesting element, either. Many people take a world of pains to get their names before the public, in a complimentary way, through the columns of a newspaper. Well, then. Does not all this practice of praising by the press imply some right to censure? Has a paper always the right to flatter and never a right to blame? Let people rebel a little before they so hastily condemn "personal journalism." Nobody defends reckless newspaper assaults, made with malice or for blackmail, upon the character of any individual with whose affairs the public may have no connection. But such attacks are no more personal journalism than fulsome flattery would be. What is sweepingly denounced as personal journalism is simply abuse of a privilege which custom concedes to the press.

The logic of which is, in brief, that the true journal has some other office to fill than that of making itself a purveyor of "taffy" to ambitious and vain people striving for undeserved political or social recognition, and to whom newspaper praise is as the breath of life; some other office to fill than that of airing the grievances (and securing the subscriptions) of little-great men seeking to ride into power, not on their own merits, which are generally nil, but upon the shoulders of the press, which is too frequently prostituted to unworthy ends because of the lack of self-respect, independence and manly principle on the part of its conductors.

THERE is a very pretty story going on the rounds about Miss Rose Cleveland. In fact, there are several pretty stories abroad about that charming young lady's doings, social, reformatory, literary and otherwise. But the particular pretty story to which we refer is this: We came back from there was some house-cleaning to be done in the Executive Mansion, she tied a towel around her head, put on an old calico dress, and with broom and dust-pan in hand went from room to room and made things lively for awhile. The servants, who had never witnessed such a scene in the old mansion, stood aghast, but they didn't deter her from going through with the work," etc., etc., and so forth, and so forth. As an advertising agent for Miss Rose Cleveland, the "first lady of the land" is developing into an "unqualified success," to quote the language of the stock theater puff.

IT is not surprising that Mr. John Roach feels very uncomfortable about the way things have turned out with respect to the Dolphin. He got the job of making the beginning of a new navy, receiving plans and details from a so-called Advisory Board, and the first result is a nondescript craft, which is a sort of cross between a pleasure yacht and a tow-boat.—[San Francisco Examiner.

Since it is admitted that the plans and details for the ship were received from the Navy Department, and not furnished by John Roach, who simply worked under orders, where is the justice or sense in charging him with the responsibility of turning out a "nondescript craft," objectionable to his employers?

WHILE Justus Schwab, the New York socialist, was recently waiting for a verdict in his trial for inciting a riot, burglars entered his house and robbed it of all the valuables they could lay their hands on. They agreed with Schwab's views as to a community of property and the equal distribution of the good things of this world, and acted on it. Strange to say, Schwab is anything but happy in this practical illustration of his doctrine.—[San Francisco Examiner.

No happier than Coroner O'Donnell would be were his advice to "apply the torch" acted upon by some of his deluded followers in his own case.

THE San Diego Sun has entered upon a new volume with considerable energy and spirit. Since Warren Wilson took hold of it the paper is better than before.

A CAMPING JOURNEY.

From Santa Ana Through San Diego County and Return.

Correspondence of the TIMES.]

SANTA ANA, July 22.—Your correspondent and wife, George A. Hubbard and wife, of Tustin, and L. A. Wood, of San Francisco, started about the 1st of July on a camping tour through San Diego county. We were well supplied with all that pertained to our comfort before starting, so that we were quite independent, even at a very small outlay.

Our journey at first lay across the San Joaquin and Rawson ranches to San Juan, some 28 miles from Santa Ana. At this point we took dinner as campers usually do, and then went the rounds of the town, viewing the old ruins of the old cathedral for a hundred or more years. In answer to our many queries the old priest in charge would say "they say so," not wishing to commit himself as to dates, &c. Our first day's journey brought us to what has been known as Foster City. The city, however, does not now exist, as most of the buildings have been removed on to other parts of the great ranch, now owned by Richard O'Neil, for the use of the many employés. The first night's camping was without incident.

Before breaking camp we met the superintendent of Mr. O'Neil's great ranch. He informed us that the ranch now embraced some 450,000 acres all in one body; that it has twenty-eight miles of ocean front, and that there are now some 11,000 head of cattle grazing on this pasture, in addition to a large number of horses. Mr. O'Neil has just shipped 3000 head of beef cattle to the San Francisco market. Our second day's journey took us across the ranch, and by the fatal leap where Mr. Bates and the stage and team where hurled down a precipice some 150 feet in almost immediate destruction last spring.

About 3 p. m. the second day we reached San Luis Rey, a small village, situated in a beautiful valley surrounded by a few ranches of beauty and value. But the town seems to be doomed, as the railroad passes some three or four miles west of the town. Oceanside, the railroad town on the beach near by, seems to be enjoying a perfect boom just now. A. J. Meyers, formerly a resident of Los Angeles, is the leading man. He a few years ago located 160 acres on the present town site, and is reaping a rich harvest in selling town lots at $50 and upwards. Water works, to be supplied from the San Luis Rey river, are talked of. A schoolhouse is to be built this season. The situation is rather an attractive one, as good bathing facilities are near at hand and a beautiful drive of twenty miles can be indulged in along the beach. We think this the rising town of this portion of the county. We camped at Oceanside and the next morning drove twelve miles along the beach toward San Diego. This is a delightful drive, being a smooth, almost level beach.

At Encenitas we left the ocean and had quite a different experience from that enjoyed along the beach. The country is new, very broken, sandy, and the roads not the plainest in the world. Many new settlements have been made in this region because land is cheap. While the settlers had hope the crops looked as if they were without hope, and we predict that there will be many ranches for sale, cheap, there in the near future, unless more than the usual amount of rain falls that region.

The evening of the third day brought us to San Diego. We found the city full of strangers, the hotels crowded and everybody seemed hopeful. In answer to the query why so many people were there, "The climate" was the general response. We spent three days there and in the vicinity, visiting National City, the monument on the Mexican border, and other noteworthy places.

National City is some four miles from San Diego, and is the terminus of the California Southern Railroad. It is evidently intended to be a great city by its founders, but they have signally failed, as about every fourth house is now empty, and many that now own property there would gladly sell and get away. Still, there is a feeling that a boom is soon to begin there. Real estate is looking up in San Diego, and it looks as if San Diego is soon to realize what she has been hoping for these many years. A more hopeful feeling could not well be indulged in than is shared by the dwellers of the Bay City. Appropriate words of Judge Chenoy's Fourth of July oration were heard from many persons who heard him.

After a three days' rest, our company started north through Poway, San Bernardino, Escondido, San Pasqual, Santa Maria and San Isabel valleys, thence up the grade to Mesa Grande. All through this region we saw some most beautiful country in the valleys, but the valleys are so small compared with the rough mountainous country surrounding that one is led to wonder at the small productive regions of this country compared with the non-productive. From Mesa Grande we descend the slide of 1000 feet to Warner's ranch, cross this, and down the valley to Temecula, on the California Southern. This town has indications of prosperity. The country around seems to be very productive.

Murietta is the next town north in the same valley, and some 16 miles further north is Elsinore, the most prosperous of the many new towns starting up along this road. It has elements of substantial growth. Coal and potter's clay are mined near by. The town is growing and the people hopeful. Many new ranches are being opened up along the lake that lies just west and south of the town, but the weather is too sinfully hot there just now.

From Elsinore we journey to Temescal, a place of no importance, and thence to our Santa Ana home.

We came back with the feeling that our own little ranch was worth $100 more per acre than it was before we started.

Our friend L. A. Wood, of San Francisco, was the joy and inspiring genius of our company. He came to California in an early day, and has had a varied experience and has a wonderful memory. He can remember all the details of every incident in his large experience. Every place visited, every incident, every experience in camp or by the way, called forth from him an anecdote. He would fail us to sleep by his stories and wake us up by the same means. Good company makes a camping tour enjoyable.

Calico Clippings.

Print, July 19.]

The new five-stamp mill has been running quite steadily the past week, and also the sampling works in connection with the same. A large quanty of ore has been sampled and miners continues to bring in loads of it every day.

R. A. Hall, the agent at the railroad depot, is in Los Angeles to be absent a week or so for recreation.

As an example of how hot it is in and around Calico we will relate the fact that two lizards were recently seen on the desert in the act of standing on their hind legs making a shade for the other to cool off under. First one would stand up and then the other, spelling each other. Next!

ALOSTA.

NOTES ABOUT THE NEW SETTLEMENT.

Correspondence of the TIMES.]

ALOSTA, July 23.—The settlement of Alosta lies north of Azusa, along the foothills of the Sierra Madre Mountains, between the San Gabriel and Dalton Cañons.

The settlement is as yet in its infancy, being but little more than two years old, but it bids fair to make itself known as a fruit district, as it has every advantage of position, soil, water and scenery.

The location is not surpassed in Southern California, with the Sierra Madre range for a background and its numberless cañons, cool retreats, romantic camping places and health resorts, and for a foreground the beautiful and extensive San Gabriel valley, dotted with settlements and their wealth of orange groves, orchards and vineyards.

To the east and south can be seen the tall, bluegums of Pomona, nine miles distant; to the south are Azusa and Covina; a little to the right are Puente and El Monte; to the east are Duarte, Alhambra and the Old San Gabriel Mission, and in the distance Pasadena with its noted groves and beautiful homes.

The soil is a sandy loam, decomposed granite, or what is known as a "made soil," and when properly cultivated holds moisture so well that no irrigation is needed for deciduous fruits and vines.

The water supply is obtained from springs in the mountains and is piped down by individuals or small companies, and is of the best quality. Oranges, apricots, peaches, prunes and raisin grapes are an assured success. Several real estate transfers have been made lately and improvements are constantly going on.

Alosta has not been owned by speculators and held up before the public in flaming advertisements, but has been steadily advancing in its battle with the brush, ever read, to welcome those who have the means or muscle to assist in the "good fight." We have no better people, no richer soil, no milder climate and no finer scenery than many other settlements in Southern California, but we beg to be ranked with the best in all.

NOTES.

The members of the Christian Church have erected a tent near the ditch and Dr. Kendrick, of Downey, is holding services during the week.

Mrs. Kidwell has begun clearing her ranch, preparatory to building and other improvements.

Mr. William Cullon is expecting an average of two tons per acre from his vineyard of two year-old muscats.

That the S. G. V. R. R. is coming, and that soon, is an assurance that makes our people happy.

Mayor Spence has lately purchased the Bi. Hunt place, and Mr. Blossom the hop ranch.

There is some talk of a hotel being built soon.

We now have a daily mail and stage line from Puente. CEM.

The Hen's Egg.

From Every Other Saturday.]

Not long since a New Hampshire committeeman was examining an infant school class. "Can any little girl or boy give the definition of the word 'strange?'" he asked. For some time no one replied, but finally a little girl hesitatingly replied: "It is a thing a hen lays an egg on, sir." "No, that's not right," os, sir, go back and say so;" and she trotted up to her questioner and pointed to this sentence in her reading book: "A hen lays an egg every day on an average."

New South Wales sent a contingent of eight hundred men to the Soudan, and the Australian Commissary Department, by order of the War Office, added St. Jacob's oil to the equipment of each man.

Now that the season is at hand when the ladies will be seen in their gorgeous costumes, and the gentlemen in their fine linen, it is well to remember that Parker's Hair Balsam is the best preparation for restoring the color to gray hair, and for preventing baldness. Only 50 cents.

Dr. Ned Craw during my absence will take my office and practice and I commend him to my patrons. I will resume my practice on my return in September. Dr. WONG, 125 Upper Main st. julyly tf

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Government bonds dull.

The most prominent feature of to-day's market has been a great advance in Jersey Central, with Philadelphia and Reading next, with Philadelphia and Reading next, while Pacific Mail and Lake Shore have been strong and rose during the forenoon to 40¾, in the afternoon the former sold but strong until 9 o'clock, when it declined to 40¾. In the next hour it declined to 40, and between that and 1 o'clock, jumped to 47¾, and closed at that price. The only reason for this sudden advance in price is said to be on account of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which, having failed to come to terms with the Jersey Central officials in regard to the terms of agreement with the Pennsylvania Road, the New York company has determined to acquire a controlling interest in the New Jersey road, and it is said that purchases were made to-day by the firm of Drexel & Morgan, who, it is said, bought 40,000 shares at 47¾, and more has been made, between the New York and Pennsylvania roads.

A DETERMINED SUICIDE.

C. M. Soper Kills Himself With a Piece of Glass.

Charles H. Soper was a well-to-do farmer, 57 years of age, and a native of New York. In last year's Great Register his residence is put down as El Monte, but it is stated that more recently he has lived on the Alhambra tract. Last Saturday he was admitted to the Sisters' Hospital in a demented condition. Dr. Worthington examined him, and asked him if he had ever felt any desire to kill himself. Soper replied that he had, and in consequence of this answer the doctor had a man sleep in the room to watch him. Dr. Worthington went to Soper's room Tuesday afternoon and found it vacant. On looking out of the window he saw Soper lying there apparently dead. The unfortunate man was still alive, but soon expired. He had cut the radial artery of his wrist with a piece of glass, in the ten minutes he had been left alone by the attendants. Dr. Worthington states that no blame attaches to any of the hospital attendants.

An inquest on Soper's body was held yesterday forenoon at Foust & Orr's by Coroner McFarland and the following jury: C. Guercio, F. Baker, H. T. Harris, Dr. B. F. Bragg, B. J. Horstman and Julius Piondke. The verdict was that deceased committed suicide while laboring under an attack of melancholia. Soper left a wife and daughter at Alhambra, where the funeral will take place to-day.

All day we will offer all our four-button kid gloves at the regular price, $1 per pair, and all our five hook, $1.25 kid gloves at the regular price, and all our seven-hook, $1.50 kid gloves at the regular price, and by paying 25 cents extra we will sell you another pair just like them in quality, and in any shade or size you may want; and we don't see how they can be sold for less. We believe we have more customers to the square inch than any house in the city, and we are going to increase the square inches by opening up our big basement, and we will then be able to do more business by several square inches than ever before. We expect soon to enlarge our money drawer.

The Desire to Have the Second Company Officially Recognized, that the Corps May Become a Battalion—The Governor's Promise.

A red-letter day for the Eagle Corps was yesterday. Governor Stoneman, coming to the city, visited the ball in the evening and reviewed the Corps, which acquitted itself so well in maneuver and appearance as to call forth his warm commendation. After the review, Major-General Forman, of Nevada, placed in the hands of Major W. H. H. Russell eleven handsome marksmanship medals (one of gold, the rest silver) to be competed for by the Corps. The ladies connected with the Corps had provided a banquet in the large ante-room; and thither after the revive, Brigadier-General J. R. Mathews and staff, Major W. H. H. Russell and staff, and their guests—Governor Stoneman, Mayor Spence, Hon. R. F. Del Valle, Captain F. Jordan and press representatives—repaired.

The tables having been obliged to capitulate, Major Russell proposed the health of who said, in response, that he had known the Eagle Corps a long time, but now first enjoyed the pleasure of being entertained by it. "It is a body of which the city may well be proud, well-equipped, well-uniformed, well-drilled, and, I presume, with the proper example set it. The National Guard is not a new thing, but represents the thought of years, and is a valuable institution of the State. Last summer two companies of the Guard were called out to the San Joaquin valley to do service that promised great danger. They did their duty well, and saved the State from a vast amount of injury. The people of the State should take more interest in the National Guard, whose importance and value they do not realize." The Governor then explained that he meant no reflection on the Eagle Corps in his Fourth of July speech here two years ago—a speech which stirred up "the boys" considerably.

He then proposed the health of Mayor Spence, who paid his tribute to the National Guard in general, and the Eagle Corps in particular.

Hon. R. F. Del Valle responded to the drinking of his health, referring to the fact that the Corps has never before been on an satisfactory a basis. The Brigadier General is now one of our own citizens, and is personally acquainted with all his staff, who are representative business men of our city.

MAJOR RUSSELL

said the corps had been in existence for four years, and had never fallen below a membership of 100, running up sometimes to 150. This number is too large to be well handled in drill as a single company, and hence we seek recognition as a battalion. We are not seeking it for the sake of higher rank, but because we believe we are entitled to battalion form by our numbers. Our application has been considered at headquarters, and we trust it will be granted. We are in earnest, and are not mere play soldiers.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL MATHEWS

said that in accepting his position he had feared that it was more than he could carry; and decided that only a thorough union and harmony would there be the necessary strength. His entire staff had fully equipped themselves, and he felt safe in speaking of them as representative citizens, gentlemen all, and soldiers at the time of need. The young men of the Eagle Corps are full of vim and enthusiasm, giving their time and money freely to fit themselves to be the defenders of the people in any emergency. All we need now is the battalion organization. Major Russell and his staff, and in fact the whole organization, are acting in perfect harmony with us. It would be a detriment to the corps not to have the second company recognized.

made a brief but highly humorous speech, which kept the room in a laugh. He said: "If we are called out to active service—as I am not in a hurry that we should be—I promise to extract the bullets from your frames carefully, carve off your limbs as artistically as possible, and, if need be, dispatch you neatly and expeditiously into the next world."

Major Stern said he had seen the Eagle Corps make great progress, and felt that it deserved much at the hands of the citizens and of the State government. He hoped the Governor would recognize its claims, and said he believed it as good a company as is now drilling on the coast.

GOVERNOR STONEMAN,

in response to another health, said:

"You will all agree with me that the Governor should be conspicuous by his simplicity. A good many have asked me what uniform I should wear; but I have decided to stick to my citizen's uniform. Politics have never been allowed by me to enter into this matter. I do not even know to-day the politics of your commander. We are allowed by law only forty companies of the N. G. in this State; but there are about sixty which might be enrolled. Nearly every town has a company, all anxious to come into the N. G. C. The only way to add a company now is by mustering one out. There are a few now that we could well spare. The people do not esteem or pay the National Guard as they should. If I had my way I'd organize the National Guard of the State into a grand division, and have a division encampment yearly. I'd have them practicing with the heavy artillery, too. If you are ever called out, it will be to repel a foreign foe. I wouldn't mind $200,000 or $400,000 more for barracks and fortifications on Catalina Island, as you Los Angeles folks did—or were responsible for doing, if you didn't do it yourselves—but would forcify such places as San Diego, San Pedro and San Francisco. The only thing to be done now is to work harmoniously and perfect yourselves. Whatever I can do, in the remaining year and a half of my office, for this honorable and creditable part of the N. G. C, you may rest assured I will do with pleasure.

Further appropriate speeches were made by Major J. Downey Harvey, Lieutenant C. F. Wilson, Mr. Bartlett, leader of the Eagle Corps band, Major Gilchrist, Major Butler, and Captain Jordan. The toast "The Press," was responded to by reporters of the Express and TIMES. Governor Stoneman told a Lincoln story; the health of Adjutant-General Crosby was drank, and with thanks to the ladies for the banquet, the company adjourned at 11 p. m.

The Blake Engraving and Electro-typing Company.

Mr. C. E. Blake, senior member of the above-named firm, received telegraphic advice yesterday that all the machinery for the new establishment was shipped from Chicago by fast freight on the 21st inst. It ought to arrive here in ten days from shipment. The new company has secured quarters in the Downey block, adjoining the TIMES composing room, and will start out under the most favorable auspices, having all new machinery and of the most approved style. The company will be a valuable addition to the manufacturing establishments of Los Angeles.
